

Homework horror

For last night's homework you were supposed to write a film review but you didn't because you went out and played football instead. You thought you could just make one up on the spot but when your teacher asks you to read it you get nervous and your mouth goes dry. What should you do?

Babysitting bother

Your parents go out for the evening and leave you with a babysitter. The babysitter wears hearing aids so he doesn't hear the phone when it rings. The answer machine picks it up. It is your parents saying they forgot to tell the babysitter your bedtime. You realise you can get away with staying up late if you don't tell the sitter about the message. What do you do? Why?